

European Maritime Day 2024

Denmark to host major international maritime conference

The Danish Maritime Authority (DMA) announced that in 2024, Denmark will be hosting European Maritime Day with more than 1,000 participants. With its maritime surroundings, the city of Svendborg will be the setting of the conference.

European Maritime Day is one of Europe's largest maritime conferences. The Council of the European Union has awarded Denmark the honour of hosting the conference in 2024. Earlier this year, the Danish Minister for Industry, Business and Financial Affairs nominated Svendborg as his country's candidate city.

This will be the first time that the conference is held in Denmark, and the Municipality of Svendborg will be at its centre.

Denmark's Minister for Industry, Business and Financial Affairs commented: 'It is a great pleasure to announce today that Svendborg will be hosting European Maritime Day. We have made great efforts to attract this conference to Denmark and – in the middle of the South Funen archipelago – Svendborg is ideally located for a conference focusing on the ongoing development of a robust maritime sector, which is of major importance to Denmark.'

Photo by Mads Claus Rasmussen © kindly provided by the DMA.