

IEEE/ION PLANS 2018
23-26 April 2018

Nominations for the PLANS Kershner Award now being accepted
www.ion.org/plans

Nominations are being accepted for the IEEE/ION Positioning, Location and Navigation Symposium (PLANS) 2018 Kershner Award, the biennial award recognizing individuals who have made substantial contributions to the technology of navigation and position equipment, systems or practices. To nominate an individual readers are invited to submit nominations online by 19 January.

See here: <https://www.ion.org/plans/awards-kersher.cfm>

The PLANS Kershner Award will be presented at the IEEE/ION PLANS taking place from 23 to 26 April, 2018 at the Hyatt Regency Monterey, Monterey, California.

Registration is possible here: <https://www.ion.org/plans/registration.cfm>

The Position Location and Navigation Symposium (PLANS) is a biennial technical conference that occurs in the spring of even numbered years. Its mission is to provide a forum to share the latest advances in navigation technology.

This conference is jointly sponsored by the Aerospace and Electronics Systems Society (AEISS), and the (US) Institute of Navigation (ION). The AEISS is sponsored by the IEEE, which is the world's largest professional engineering organization. The ION is claimed to be the world's premier professional organization for the advancement of positioning, navigation and timing.