

EfficienSea2

The maritime world is ready for a technology jump

In week ending 7 April when EfficienSea2 hosted the project's final conference in Copenhagen, the debate and presentations all centred around the same theme: Rapid technological development in the maritime world.

Andreas Nordseth, Director General at the Danish Maritime Authority, told the guests at the beginning of the conference: 'We are showing the world that we are ready to move ahead and address the big opportunity in front of us. We have come to a time where everyone in the maritime world has started to realise that it is indeed a fantastic time we are living in. We are at the doorstep of a new maritime technology jump.'

In the region of 200 participants heard the keynote speakers and got a chance to experience more than 20 different project results on various digital platforms in sessions made to demonstrate the solutions from EfficienSea2.

Readers may wish to read more about what these speakers had to say about EfficienSea2 and future maritime digitalisation at the EfficienSea2 website here: <https://efficiensea2.org/the-hockey-stick-moment-for-maritime-digitalisation/>