

The Legal Session at the Munich Satellite Navigation Summit

The 2019 Summit

Additional speakers sought

2019 marks the 10th anniversary of the Legal Session at the Munich Satellite Navigation Summit, organized by BHO Legal in cooperation with the Institute of Space Technology and Space Applications (ISTA) at the University of the German Armed Forces.

The Munich Summit is one of the leading conferences on GNSS systems and applications. High-ranking worldwide speakers from industry, science and government provide participants with a broad overview and different perspectives on the latest developments in the field of GNSS.

The Legal Session, a unique event for GNSS conferences, provides insight on legal or regulatory developments regarding GNSS systems and applications on international, European or national levels.

Over the past ten years, the session has covered a multitude of aspects such as space law, international frequency allocations, system procurement, liability, intellectual property rights (IPR), data protection, or use of GNSS in autonomous systems.

2019 Summit

The 2019 Summit will take place from 25-27 March in Munich, Germany at Alte Kongresshalle, Theresienhöhe 15, 80339 München.

The Legal Session will take place on the afternoon of the second day, 26 March 2019.

Readers will find nearby a pdf of the flyer with the first announcement.

Otherwise further information may be found here:

<https://www.munich-satellite-navigation-summit.org/>

The 2019 Legal Session will include presentations by the European Commission on plans for future regulations on the use of the European GNSS systems in safety-critical applications.

Professor Kozouka, Gakushuin University, Tokyo, will present the latest developments in Japanese space law and relevant aspects of the Quasi-Zenith system.

Additional speakers

According to Dr Ingo Baumann, additional speakers are being sought and those interested are kindly invited to submit proposals for presentations on legal or regulatory topics relevant to GNSS.

He may be contacted here: Ingo.Baumann@bho-legal.com

*Initially, a very brief outline of a proposed presentation is required no later than 18 January 2019.