In the US the Institute of Navigation (ION) announces that the ION Joint Navigation Conference 2020 has been rescheduled to 8-11 September, at the Northern Kentucky Convention Center.

It was announced from ION HQ in Manassas, Virginia, on 8 April that the ION Joint Navigation Conference (JNC) 2020 has been RESCHEDULED and will now take place from 8 – 11 September this year (Tuesday-Friday) at the original locations.

The US-only For Official Use Only (FOUO) sessions will be hosted at the Northern Kentucky Convention Center in Covington, Kentucky (right across the river from Cincinnati, Ohio), and the US-only secret sessions will be hosted at the Air Force Institute of Technology (AFIT), WPAFB in Dayton, Ohio. The rescheduled conference will host the original program, as previously scheduled in June.

In the words of ION’s Executive Director Lisa Beaty: ‘We are aware of the importance of this community of dedicated public servants meeting in an environment where they can effectively collaborate, exchange research, and demonstrate technology. The current global climate made our ability to hold this conference in June unlikely, and we needed to provide an alternative opportunity for all our stakeholders.’

ION has stated that anyone already registered to attend, present, or exhibit at JNC 2020 will be contacted by the Institute directly. Otherwise, to register for JNC 2020, 8-11 September, 2020, readers are invited to see here: https://www.ion.org/jnc/registration.cfm

New hotel reservations for JNC 2020 can be made AFTER 30 April using this link: https://www.ion.org/jnc/hotel.cfm

In addition you are invited to see: www.ion.org/jnc for updated program information.

About ION
The Institute of Navigation is one of the world’s premier professional societies dedicated to advancing Positioning, Navigation and Timing (PNT). The Institute is a national organization whose membership spans worldwide. Additional information about the ION can be found at http://www.ion.org